Comporta Stonewashed Linen Collection

Comporta's infinite beaches and humble, whitewashed houses with their colorful borders were the backdrop of my favorite summers growing up. You can see these relaxed summers in the rustic palettes and textures of the Comporta Stonewashed Linen Collection, featuring a soft white envelope back to keep things just as simple.

Crafted ethically by 3rd generation seamstresses with "Oeko-Tex"® certified linen for its environmentally friendly production.

Handcrafted in Central Portugal.
For best results, handwash cold and air-dry flat.

Porto Stonewashed Linen Collection

Heading north to Porto from Lisbon always felt like a trip to somewhere familiar but magical, a sister city with a darker side: the beaux-arts buildings defiantly proud, rich, many with deep colored tiles suggesting the ruby of the port wine itself.

Our pillows are crafted ethically by 3rd generation seamstresses, using "Oeko-Tex"® certified linen for its environmentally friendly production. Each pillow has an envelope back in the deep rich navy as seen on the front panels.

Lisbon Stonewashed Linen Collection

Inspired by the tiled building façades from my childhood in Lisbon, I worked with 3rd-generation seamstresses to adapt a Portuguese style of patchwork, hand-cutting and sewing linen panels to create patterns that bring us back to the cobble-stoned streets of Lisbon.

Handcrafted in central Portugal with environmentally responsible "Oeko-Tex"® stonewashed linen. For best results, handwash cold and air-dry flat.

Dating as far back as the 13th century, the "Azulejos" tiles not only keep houses cool in hot sunny days, but chronicle the history of Portugal itself - from its original moorish influences through the figurative blue and white porcelain celebrating being the first Europeans to journey to Asia by sea.

Alentejo Heavyweight Linen Collection

The best lazy afternoons are spent driving through Alentejo's rolling hills filled with cork oaks, through its sand roads in the seaside protected forests. Peaceful and simple. The Alentejo Collection draws on this philosophy, featuring simple patterns in a heavier weight European linen, with a great feel in the hand and an envelope back in the same colors as the front.

For best results, handwash cold and air-dry flat. They may also be machine washed cold in a gentle cycle with a mild detergent.

Hand-Embroidered Heavyweight Linen Collection

When the tradition of linen took hold in Northern Portugal a thousand years ago, hand-embroidery wasn't far behind.

I've always been fascinated by the women that with a few humble materials create beauty that holds the test of time, passing these traditions to the next generation.

They were also absolutely game to apply these traditions in new ways as we collaborated on this new pillow collection.

For best results, handwash cold and air-dry flat.

Comporta Handthrown Dinnerware

Our head-potter handthrows each piece in the same studio as his father and grandfather, his potter's wheel in the exact same spot.

Made of local terracotta, each piece is then handglazed in such a way that the clay below it shines through just enough to show a depth of color, and the hand of the maker. Dishwasher safe.

The Coffee Pour-Over pitcher is one of my favorite pieces because it makes the process of making and serving coffee so much easier.

Simply place coffee filter with your preferred ground coffee, then pour up to 28oz of boiling water through and that's it! When the water goes through the filter, dispose of the filter and you have freshly brewed coffee.

You can serve right from the pitcher until fully caffeinated.

One of the best things about launching Lusitano Studio has been re-discovering Portugal during my trips to meet with makers. This image (and the back cover of this catalog) was shot at Pensão Agricola, a converted farmhouse surrounded by old trees and two very friendly donkeys.

Marinha Handblown Glass

The Marinha collection is a collaboration with one of the few Glass Masters that remains in Marinha Grande, a village that has been making glass for centuries - ever since the Portuguese Royal Glassworks was drawn there by the rich pine forests that would power its large wood-burning ovens.

The Glass Master handblows each piece using recycled glass, giving it a depth of color and texture that can't be created any other way.

VilaReal Handwoven Table Linen Collection

Close to the village where my Grandmother grew up, three incredible women handweave linen in the same way as has been done for over a thousands of years in Northern Portugal.

Machine wash cold, no-heat tumble.
Ironing recommended for that crisp feel.
